STARS' PRISON PROJECTS

How celebrities made the most of their time behind bars

TERESA TOOK UP YOGA

"Yoga helped me get through it all," Real Housewives of New Jersey star Teresa Giudice, 50, says of finding her Zen during her 11 months in prison in 2015 for fraud.

JEN'S STAGING A PLAY!

Real Housewives of Salt Lake City star Jen Shah, 49, has been at Federal Prison Camp Bryan in Texas for two months (as part of a five-year sentence for wire fraud), and she's already writing and directing a play, fittingly called The Real Housewives of Bryan.

TODD'S PREACHING

Spreading the good word! "He is working in the chapel," Savannah Chrisley says of her 54-year-old dad, Todd, who began his 12-year sentence for tax evasion and fraud at a federal prison in Pensacola, Fla., in January. "I get to hear all these people's stories and how he's affecting their life and encouraging change."

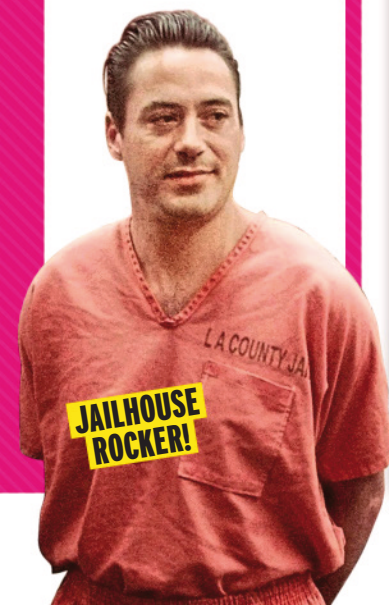

MARTHA MADE CERAMICS

"We had this fabulous ceramics studio in West Virginia, and I made an entire crèche scene. That's my best memory," Martha Stewart, 81, says of being locked up for five months in 2004 for insider trading. She later sold replicas of the Nativity scene, joking that they'd make good Christmas gifts "with street cred."

ROBERT JOINED THE CHOIR!

While serving a year in a California prison in 1999 for violating probation on drug charges, Robert Downey Jr., 58, not only worked in the kitchen (for eight cents an hour!) but also led in the inmates' Christmas choir. After his release, he joined Ally McBeal – and sang on the show's holiday album!

KIM'S HORRIFYING NEW ROLE

Wait, isn't she supposed to be a lawyer now? Kim Kardashian has landed a starring role on American Horror Story, opposite Emma Roberts. The show's co-creator Ryan Murphy revealed on April 10 that a "fun, stylish and ultimately terrifying role" was written just for Kim in Season 12, which is rumored to be a feminist take on Rosemary's Baby. And while it's been years since the reality star, 42, has played anyone but herself, she does have a few acting gigs under her belt, including a jailed scam artist on Drop Dead Diva in 2012, a cheerleader who gets crushed by a meteorite (!) in 2008's Disaster Movie, a budding serial killer in 2009 on CSI: NY, and a porn star in 2009's Deep in the Valley. Bring on the Emmy!

'BRAZEN' KATE BREAKS PROTOCOL!

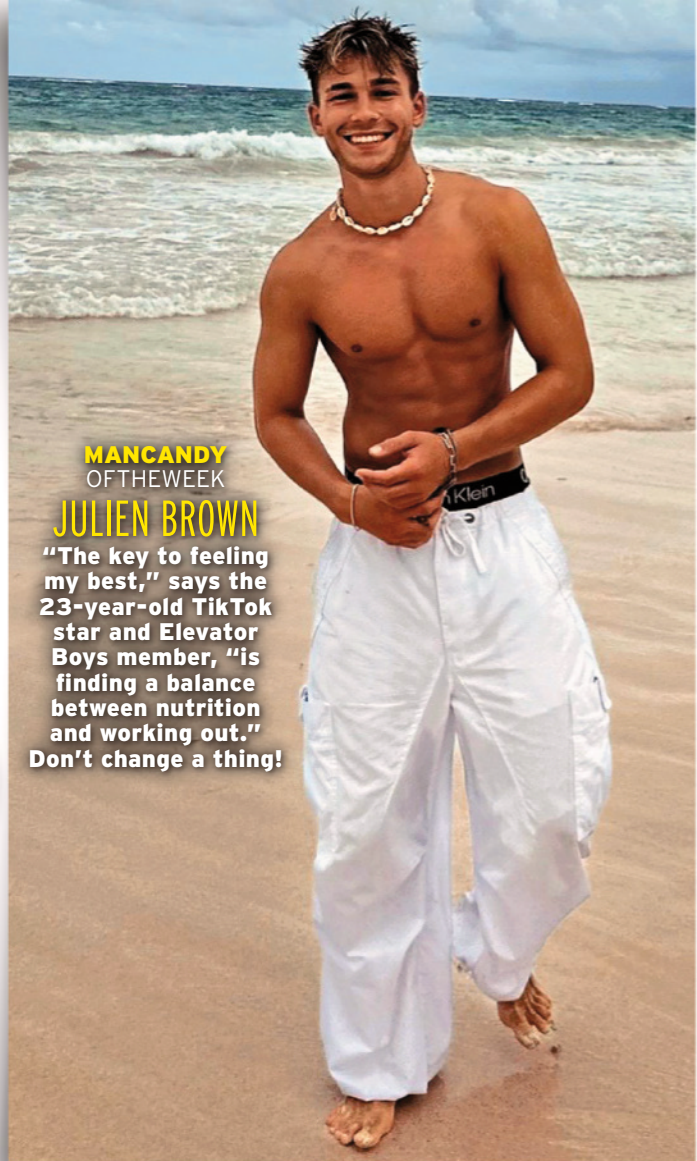

BOLD MANI!

Red alert! Kate Middleton has gone rogue! For the first time in her 12 years as a senior working royal, the Princess of Wales has broken an unspoken rule set by the late Queen Elizabeth II: For Easter services with the family on April 9, she stepped out in public with her nails painted a bold red. While Kate, 41, has gotten colorful pedicures, she's never once dared to deviate from the only lacquer reportedly approved by the queen, a delicate pink shade from Essie called Ballet Slippers. "Too bad the whole photo op is ruined by Kate's brazen red nail polish. Kate has shamed the entire family. Shocking," quipped one Twitter user, pointing out that Meghan Markle, 41, was ruthlessly slammed for her edgy black manicure in 2018. Maybe the feuding sisters-in-law have more in common than they thought!

The actor, 52, recalled the horrific accident, saying he tried to jump onto the snowplow to stop it from running over his nephew. "I got eaten up under the tracks," he described. "It was a very, very bad way to start the year."

JAY-Z & BEYONCÉ: Renew Their Vows!

Beyoncé and Jay-Z celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary on April 4 in a big way: “They renewed their vows,” a source tells In Touch. “Their anniversary is extremely important to both of them, and they make sure they do something special and romantic every year.” The couple, who also renewed their vows for their 10th anniversary in 2018, “gathered a small group of friends and family together for the celebration. The ceremony was very moving. Beyoncé is heavily into rehearsals right now for her tour, so they stuck close to home [in New York] and didn’t fly off to some exotic locale to have the ceremony.” Bey, 41, and Jay-Z, 53, got married on April 4, 2008; they wed on the fourth day in the fourth month of the year in honor of their shared favorite number. (She was born Sept. 4, he was born Dec. 4, and they have “IV” tattoos on their left ring fingers.) “This year, Jay-Z’s gift to her was the vow-renewal ceremony,” says the source. As for Bey, “she gave him an enormous ring with a gold band and several diamonds. He was blown away.”

GUESS WHO?!

With two hit shows currently streaming, this actor is on top of the world career-wise. But it may soon all come crashing down. The fan fave is facing being canceled by Hollywood after he was recently spotted groping a younger man at an industry event!

VICTORIA ENDS FEUD WITH NICOLA

What rivalry? Victoria Beckham, who reportedly doesn't like her daughter-in-law, Nicola Peltz, seemingly tried to put an end to the feud rumors once and for all on April 9 by sharing a photo from son Brooklyn and Nicola's first wedding anniversary bash. "So special to be together to celebrate," Victoria, 48, wrote alongside a photo of herself, husband David, 47, Nicola, 28, and Brooklyn, 24. "This wasn't a photo op – the ice really has thawed between Victoria and Nicola," a source tells In Touch. "As far as Victoria is concerned, the wedding drama and all the bickering that came with it are behind them. She just wants everyone to get along."

DRAKE'S TRAGIC SPIRAL

Drake Bell – best known for starring on Nickelodeon's Drake & Josh and The Amanda Show – was reported missing by the Daytona Beach Police Department on April 12. "He is considered missing and endangered," they posted on Facebook. But hours later, the 36-year-old was located and said to be "safe." In 2021, the former child star was convicted on charges relating to a girl who met him online and attended a number of his concerts when she was 15. Bell pleaded guilty to felony attempted child endangerment and a misdemeanor charge of disseminating matter harmful to juveniles. He was sentenced to two years' probation and 200 hours of community service.

Bruce & Demi's UNBREAKABLE BOND

As Bruce Willis' condition continues to deteriorate, Demi Moore is right by his side, giving him the strength to go on

In February, Bruce Willis' family revealed a devastating new diagnosis: A year after the Die Hard star retired from acting after learning he had aphasia — a neurological issue that robs a person of the ability to communicate — doctors confirmed that his condition had progressed to a form of dementia. The news left his wife of 14 years, former model Emma Heming, in “need of community,” she recently told the head of the Association for Frontotemporal Degeneration during a public conversation on the challenges dementia patients and their caregivers face. “Sometimes it feels like you’re just free-falling. This journey can feel very dark.”

But Emma and Bruce have found a source of light as they struggle to navigate the unknown. Demi Moore, Bruce's ex-wife with whom he shares three adult daughters, has been a constant presence as his condition progresses. “Emma is grateful to have Demi around,” a source close to the family tells In Touch. “It’s been incredibly difficult for Emma to manage Bruce’s care, their two young daughters, and the grief she’s experiencing. So Demi isn’t stepping on her toes. Demi is actually a lifesaver.” Since learning that Bruce has frontotemporal dementia — for which there is no cure or treatment — his family, including Demi, have started preparing themselves to say goodbye. “Demi has stepped in,” says the source, “to make sure every holiday, birthday and get-together is as celebratory as possible.”

HIS ROCK

For Easter, the whole family gathered for a big backyard egg hunt. “We’re in it to win it!” Emma wrote on a video as she showed all the Easter egg hunt participants — including Demi — ready to start the activity. “This past Easter and Christmas may have been Bruce’s last,” says the source.

Demi will do anything to make Bruce’s final months or years happy ones — and

UNLIKELY ANGEL

"Demi and Bruce are a part of each other, always will be," says a source.

SURROUNDED BY LOVE

Rumer's Touching Promise to Bruce

Bruce's eldest child, Rumer, is pregnant and thrilled she's about to make him and Demi first-time grandparents. If it's a boy, Rumer and her boyfriend, musician Derek Richard Thomas, 28, "may make his middle name Bruce," says a source. "Or they may just call him Bruce. It was very touching when Rumer told her father her plan at his birthday celebration. Everyone had tears in their eyes."

to help Bruce's daughters make more memories with their father. "Demi threw him a special 68th birthday celebration in March," says the source. The actress, 60, shared a video on Instagram of a smiling Bruce singing "Happy Birthday" to himself. "He wanted his fans to see it," says the source. "He wanted to send them a message — that he'll always find joy in his life, even now." By his side were their daughters, Rumer, 34, Scout, 31, and Tallulah, 29, as well as Emma, 44, and her girls with Bruce, Mabel, 11, and Evelyn, 8. "It meant the world to Bruce. You could see it in his eyes."

TOUGH TIMES AHEAD

With the type of dementia Bruce has — it affects behavior, personality, language and movement — it's difficult to predict how long someone will live. According to the National Institute on Aging, symptoms get worse over time and "some people live more than 10 years after diagnosis, while others live less than two years."

Bruce's loved ones "are hoping for the best," says the source. "The bond between Demi and Bruce is sweet to watch, but Demi and Emma also have this amazing connection. It's only gotten deeper since Bruce's decline. Demi has always been on great terms with Emma. They spend holidays and vacations together." As Demi once said, "We are mothers united, sisters bonded on this crazy adventure of life."

Demi and Bruce have always been extremely close, even more so after they called it quits. In fact, Demi wrote in her 2019 book, Inside Out: A Memoir, that she and Bruce, who broke up nearly 25 years ago after a decade of marriage, "felt more connected [after our split] than we did before the divorce."

That solid foundation is more important than ever as Bruce's condition worsens. There are good days and bad ones where "Bruce can't say much and it doesn't seem he's grasping much of what others say," an insider recently revealed. "So Emma has been the voice and communicator for him." There are also days where "they see glimpses of the old Bruce, but they are brief and fleeting," the insider continued. "It seems like he's slipping further away from them, and it break their hearts."

GIVING BACK

Before Bruce's health crisis intensified, he and Emma planned for the future. In the past five years, he sold nearly $65 million worth of luxury properties around the world, including his prized Turks and Caicos compound for $27 million in 2019. With an estimated net worth upwards of $250 million, Bruce shared his intention to give a large chunk of that — $200 million, says the source — to charity. The Moonlighting star has his own Bruce Willis Charity Foundation, which aims to improve the lives of young people by empowering them to express themselves in creative ways so that they can reach their full potential. "Bruce's wife and children are already set for life," a second insider told In Touch last year, "and he wants his money to help the less fortunate."

STICKING TOGETHER

His family, meanwhile, wants to help one another as they continue to come to terms with the reality of Bruce's health crisis. "It took years to get answers on what was happening to Bruce and months for the family to accept his diagnosis," says the source. "It's been a very long road. This isn't going to get easier, but they're grateful that Bruce has the care he needs — and that they have each other." ■

MEGHAN SKIP CHARLES' CORONAT

BIG INSULT

"Meghan has always felt sidelined by the family," says a source, "but her diss has hit a nerve with Charles."

Meghan Markle declines to join Prince Harry at the official ceremony celebrating King Charles III

After months of speculation, royal aides finally confirmed that Prince Harry will be in London to watch his father, Charles, officially crowned king. "Buckingham Palace is pleased to confirm that The Duke of Sussex will attend the Coronation Service at Westminster Abbey on 6th May," they announced in a statement about Harry on April 12. But they added, "The Duchess of Sussex will remain in California with Prince Archie and Princess Lilibet."

That's right: Meghan Markle is snubbing her father-in-law. "Charles invited her as an olive branch after all the harm she and Harry have caused," says a source, referencing the pair's interviews and Harry's tell-all, Spare. "And what did he get in return? A big slap in the face!" And while she has good reason to skip the big day — Archie turns 4 on May 6 — this is a calculated move on Meghan's part, says the source: "She's telling friends she didn't want the coronation to turn into The Harry and Meghan Show, but the truth is: She doesn't want to be where she's not wanted."

AVOIDING CONFRONTATION

She won't exactly be missed. "It will be so much less drama without Meghan there," acknowledges an insider, noting that Kate Middleton, 41, will especially be relieved not to have to deal with her sister-in-law, 41, again after their encounter following Queen

Elizabeth II's death last September. "Catherine admitted to a senior royal that, such was the ill feeling between the two couples, the joint walkabout was one of the hardest things she'd ever had to do," royal correspondent Robert Jobson writes in his new book, Our King, about their outing to view tributes to the late monarch at Windsor Castle. Still, adds the source, "Kate thinks it's rude for Meghan to do this to Charles."

Meghan's decision was partly based on her children. Not only is it Archie's birthday, but Charles, 74, "excluded them by not giving them roles in the ceremony," says the source, noting that the Sussexes already had to fight recently to get the children their due titles of prince and princess. (Meanwhile, Prince George, 9, is the only one of Prince William's kids who will serve as a page, along with three of Queen Camilla's grand-kids.) "While Meghan goes out of her way to protect her children from the spotlight, it's the principle that counts. Being part of this event is their birthright."

Ironically, Charles did want Archie and Lilibet, 22 months, in the audience. "He misses them dearly and is desperate to see them," the insider says. "But Meghan apparently thinks it's not the right time."

She's done playing nice. "Meghan is happy with her life in Montecito away from the Firm," says the source. "She refuses to be controlled by the royal family." ■

FERGIE SLAMS HARRY & MEGHAN

For three years, members of the royal family have kept mum about Megxit — until now. "I don't believe in judging anyone," Prince Andrew's ex-wife, Sarah Ferguson, 63, said in a candid April 4 interview, before proceeding to subtly shade Harry and Meghan. When it comes to stepping down from the royal family, she said, "You can't have it both ways. You can't sit on the fence and keep one foot in and one foot out. You're either in or out. But then don't cry about not being invited to weddings. You chose to leave — now go."

Brad & Ines' New $5.5 Million Love Nest

After just five months of dating, Brad Pitt and Ines de Ramon move in together

It's getting serious! Brad Pitt and Ines de Ramon, who were first linked after they were spotted at a Bono concert at the Orpheum Theatre in LA on Nov. 13, are shacking up, In Touch has learned. The actor, 59, recently decided to sell the Los Feliz compound he'd shared with ex-wife Angelina Jolie and downsize, purchasing a $5.5 million mid-century modern pavilion made entirely of glass and steel tucked into the Los Feliz foothills. He surprised the jewelry executive, 32, with the home right after closing on it, then asked her to move in with him, and she said yes," says a source close to the couple. "Brad fell in love with the house, just as he's fallen in love with Ines." Built in 1960, the 2,000-square-foot home is aptly known as the Steel House. There are three bedrooms and two bathrooms, a cozy terrace that boasts views of the city and a redwood hot tub hidden among the lush grounds. "Despite all of the steel and glass, it's actually very warm and romantic," adds the source. "Brad and Ines couldn't be happier with it." ■

"Brad didn't want to move into the home he'd shared with Angelina, so he bought them a new house," says a source.

FAMILY TRAITS

"He's very driven in his way,
and I'm very driven in mine,"
Donnie says of Mark.

ON WORKING WITH HIS BROTHER MARK:

WE'RE STILL COMPETITIVE

The musician, actor and host dishes on going head-to-head with his A-list sibling

Tearing up on the family's successful restaurant chain, Wahlburgers, has brought Donnie Wahlberg closer to his little brother. "We work well together," he says of Mark, 51. But when it comes to play? "We're competitive over things we competed in as kids," the Blue Bloods actor, 53, admits. "Get us on a golf course or a basketball court or playing UNO, and we'd probably want to fight each other!" Here, the New Kids on the Block singer, who's been wed to Jenny McCarthy for nine years, talks to In Touch's Fortune Benatar about his superstar sibling, practicing gratitude, and why he'll always defend the Blockheads.

Tell us more about working with Mark.

DW: It's a lot of fun. Our brother Paul is also dedicated and committed. I love that Wahlburgers has brought us all together.

Do you ever compete over gigs?

DW: I don't think he wants to get back into music — Marky Mark is not going to be competing with the New Kids! And as actors, we're kind of in different realms.

Would you ever act together?

DW: I can't imagine our careers coming to a completion without us having done a film or TV project together. We almost did — I won't say the project. But I would love to, and I'm sure he would, too. It could happen a lot sooner than anyone imagined.

Season 5 of your true-crime series, Very Scary People, recently debuted. What can fans expect?

DW: It's intense and heavy. There are surprising people and situations we focus on, like the Times Square Killer, who I'd never heard of.

What's your biggest fear?

DW: I'm a very nervous flyer. I've tried to get over it, but it takes one little bump of turbulence and I can get really anxious. When that happens, I'll start tweeting with fans. It is very helpful!

NKOTB has some loyal Blockheads! Any crazy fan stories?

DW: We've had fans on top of our bus where we were driving for the airport and heard banging, and there were fans on the roof. And they've hidden in room service carts to get up to our floor in our hotel. But the Blockheads are like family to me. I'm super-protective of them.

That's nice!

DW: Our fans go to multiple concerts every year and sit in the front row, and people say, "Wow, you have crazy fans," and I say, "Well, I go to Celtics games 20 times a year and sit in the front row, but no one calls me crazy." So I don't know why that would make our fans crazy. I think it makes them awesome.

What's next for the band?

DW: We're actually doing our first-ever fan convention, called BlockCon, with 4,000 fans, and our annual cruise. Next year we'll probably hit the road again. We haven't announced anything, but I'm telling you first — we'll definitely tour again!

You've done so much! What advice would you give to your younger self?

DW: To stay present in every moment. The first thing Jenny and I do when we wake up is say thank you for another day. Nothing is promised; being here is a gift. Gratitude is the best way to have a great attitude. ■

ON A LIGHTER NOTE...

Donnie answers some burning questions!

WHAT EMOJI DO YOU USE MOST?

A heart, love

WHAT IS YOUR GUILTY PLEASURE?

Binge-watching anything with my wife while lying in bed. Currently it's probably Formula 1: Drive to Survive.

WHO HAS MADE YOU THE MOST STARSTRUCK?

My wife when I met her. I know it sounds corny. I worked with Robert De Niro and Al Pacino on a movie before. Those two also, because they were probably in my favorite movies, Godfather II and Scarface.

WHAT IS A RECENT SPLURGE PURCHASE YOU MADE FOR YOURSELF?

I have an annual splurge purchase: courtside seats to the Boston Celtics, which now got more expensive because my 21-year-old son, Elijah, is a diehard Celtics fan, so I have to buy two tickets. It's gotten a little more pricey, and it's a splurge. But it's a great time for me and him, so it's well worth it.

Stars bring their fashion A-game to toast Dior Beauty's new fragrance campaign

From fashion favorites to fresh faces, celebs marked the launch of Dare in Gris Dior by rocking head-to-toe looks from the iconic French brand, of course. Pairing a sheer, tiered skirt with a bodysuit underneath, It girl Jenna Ortega (she's one of the faces of the new campaign, which celebrates the genderless fragrance from the La Collection Privée range) served Wednesday vibes in all-black, while others – like Lucy Hale in red and Madeleine Arthur in green – injected pops of pretty color to the très chic scene at the April 11 event in L.A. Peter Pan & Wendy Never grow up! Disney's latest live-action adaptation reinvents the 1953 animated classic into a fantasy adventure for all ages. As the well-known J.M. Barrie tale goes, young Londoner Wendy Darling (Ever Anderson) and her little brothers fly away to Neverland, where they meet the Lost Boys, led by Peter Pan (Alexander Molony), along with his fairy friend, Tinker Bell (Yara Shahidi), and his nemesis, Captain Hook (Jude Law). Reworked for modern audiences (no mid-century stereotypes here), the movie promises to make an oft-told story feel fresh again.
